South Carolina General Assembly: A Citizen's Guide

The South Carolina Partnership of Disability Organizations (SCPDO) has created this manual to provide an overview of the members of the South Carolina General Assembly, including both House Representatives and Senators. Each entry includes key information about the legislator, including their district, contact details, and areas of legislative focus. After learning how to self-advocate for services and confidently share your story with legislators, a detailed list of all members can be found at the end of this manual for your reference.

Introduction: Understanding the South Carolina General Assembly

The South Carolina General Assembly is the legislative body of the state, responsible for making and passing laws that affect all South Carolinians. The General Assembly is composed of two chambers: the Senate and the House of Representatives. Together, these chambers work to create legislation, address issues that impact the state, and represent the interests of the people of South Carolina.

- Senate: The Senate consists of 46 members, each representing a district within the state. Senators serve four-year terms and work on committees to address specific policy areas, such as education, healthcare, and public safety.
- House of Representatives: The House has 124 members, each representing a district within South Carolina. Representatives serve two-year terms and are responsible for introducing and voting on laws that address a wide range of issues facing the state.

The legislative process begins when a bill is introduced in either chamber. The bill is then assigned to a committee for review, where it may be amended before being brought to the floor for a vote. If both chambers approve the bill, it is sent to the Governor for approval or veto.

The General Assembly meets annually in Columbia, the state capital, to discuss and pass legislation. Citizens are encouraged to get involved by contacting their legislators, attending public meetings, and staying informed about the legislative process. This manual is designed to help you connect with your elected officials and understand the work they do on your behalf.

Senators serve four-year terms, and House members serve two-year terms. The legislative process begins when a bill is introduced, then it goes to a committee for review. How to Advocate for Services

Advocating for services involves speaking up for yourself or someone else to ensure your needs are met. Follow these steps for effective self-advocacy:

Steps to Self-Advocacy

1. Identify Your Needs: Be clear about the services or support you require.
2. Research Available Services: Understand the services provided by your state and local agencies.
3. Know Who to Contact: Identify the correct agency, service provider, or legislator who can address your concerns.

Understanding Your Rights

You have the right to access services and supports. Learn about the specific rights you are entitled to under state and federal law, such as the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) or Medicaid guidelines. Being informed empowers you to advocate more effectively.

How to Prepare and Share Your Personal Story

1. Be Specific: Clearly explain your situation and how the services will help.
2. Focus on Impact: Share personal experiences to highlight how not having access to services affects you or your loved ones.
3. Keep it Brief and Organized: Write out the key points of your story beforehand so you can stay focused when talking to decision-makers.
4. Be Confident: Remember that your story matters and can influence change.

How to Contact Your Legislators

Importance of Contacting Legislators

Your legislators represent you and make decisions that affect your life and community. By contacting them, you can share your story, express concerns, and influence decisions on important issues like services and supports.

Strategies for Effective Communication

1. Be Clear and Direct: State the issue and what you need them to support.
2. Keep It Short: Respect their time by keeping your message concise.
